

Standup 12: Visualization and Storytelling

This week emphasized translating results into clear visual narratives using Tableau and R. Visualizations illustrated how credit behavior patterns shift across score categories.

Balancing visual appeal with analytical accuracy was a key consideration. Each visualization was designed to prioritize clarity and truthful representation.

Next week, I will consolidate findings and assess project limitations. A visual gallery with captions is included in the documentation.